There are two types of people in this world: those who learn languages easily and those who struggle with them. I (and probably you) fall into the second group. I don't even want to think about the hours (and money!) I spent trying to learn English when, really, I hated pretty much every minute of it. But people seem so smart when they can speak English, so I kept at it. That meant doing online courses, intensive summer classes, and even going to New York and getting up early on freezing winter mornings to head out to a Russian part of Brooklyn that to me was like the Far West. I barely managed to stay awake during classes in Times Square taught by teachers with dubious accents, while they received massages from devoted Japanese students. Each of these experiences came with the corresponding textbook, which addressed such thrilling topics as extreme sports and atmospheric conditions. You know, everyday vocabulary for when you leave the house and see a paraglider get carried off by a hurricane.

But having done all that and finding myself on the other side of the Atlantic, I had to discover a way—even with my terrible memory—to retain what I had learned. That's how I decided to use my drawing skills to help me memorize words and grammatical concepts. And those drawings turned into this book and learning English turned into something fun. Maybe it won't work for you, but drawing these pages helped me string a few words together in English. Don't I look smart now?

TO BE

The verb “to be” means to exist.

to be

in the Simple Present

To make NEGATIVES,
insert NOT after the verb “to be.”

I am not | I'm not
You are not | You aren't
He is not | He isn't
She is not | She isn't
It is not | It isn't
We are not | We aren't
You are not | You aren't
They are not | They aren't

The SIMPLE PRESENT FORM of TO BE.

I am | I'm
You are | You're
He is | He's
She is | She's
It is | It's
We are | We're
You are | You're
They are | They're

To make QUESTIONS,
invert the subject and the verb.

Am I ... ?
Are you ... ?

QUESTION WORDS are used to ask for information and require more than a “yes” or “no” answer.

QUESTION WORD	ASKING FOR
WHAT	information about something What's his name?
WHEN	time When is he coming?
WHERE	place Where is he from?
WHO	person Who is he?
WHY	reason Why do you like him?
HOW	manner How is he in bed?
WHICH	choice Which one do you like?
WHOSE	possession Whose bag is this?
WHOM	which person Whom are you going to date?
HOW MUCH HOW MANY	quantity How much does he earn?
HOW COME	reason (informal expression for “why?”) How come he doesn't call me?

If the question word is the object of the PREPOSITION, put the preposition at the end.

Where is he from? or What did he come for?

WORD ORDER IN SENTENCES

positive SENTENCES

SUBJECT + VERB + INDIRECT OBJECT + DIRECT OBJECT + PLACE + TIME

They	will give	you	a terrible beating	at school	tomorrow.
I	wish	you	the best.

questions

QUESTION WORD + AUXILIARY VERB + SUBJECT + VERB + INDIRECT OBJECT

Why	did	you	send	him
Where	were	you	—	—

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

negative SENTENCES

SUBJECT + VERB + INDIRECT OBJECT + DIRECT OBJECT + PLACE + TIME

She	didn't tell	him	the truth	at the pub	yesterday.
He	won't trust	her	—	—	anymore.

Same as positive sentences, but negative sentences need an auxiliary verb and “not” (except for the verb “to be”).

→ + DIRECT OBJECT + PLACE + TIME

anonymous letters	to his office	every day?
—	—	the night of the murder?

In questions, the auxiliary verb (or the main verb “to be”) goes before the subject and interrogatives go at the beginning of the sentence.

SIMPLE PRESENT

SUBJECT + VERB

You need...

The SIMPLE PRESENT is used to make statements about the present time.

For permanent facts that are always true: The night is dark.

For present facts that are true now: I feel happy.

For habitual actions: I get up late.

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

小红书

The SIMPLE PRESENT

is also used to talk about scheduled events in the near future, for example, when talking about events that happen at a set time like timetables, meetings or programs.

The train arrives at 1 a.m.

The meeting begins after lunch.

The show ends in five minutes.

NEGATIVE

To make a Simple Present negative use:

SUBJECT + DON'T | DOESN'T + INFINITIVE without "to"

I don't like...

DO + NOT = DON'T | DOES + NOT = DOESN'T

I DON'T LIKE PEOPLE.

QUESTION

To make a Simple Present question use:

DO | DOES + SUBJECT + INFINITIVE without "to"

Do you read?

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

SIMPLE PRESENT | 29

In SIMPLE PRESENT,

add S to the verb in the third person singular (he, she, it).

I look great.
You look great.
He looks great.
She looks great.
It looks great.
We look great.
You look great.
They look great.

For verbs ending in O add ES: do - does.

For verbs ending in S add ES: kiss - kisses.

For verbs ending in X add ES: mix - mixes.

For verbs ending in CH add ES: catch - catches.

For verbs ending in SH add ES: push - pushes.

For verbs ending in Y after a consonant change Y to IES: cry - cries.

Use “doesn’t” to form NEGATIVES and “does” for QUESTIONS.

I don't snore.
You don't snore.
He doesn't snore.
She doesn't snore.
It doesn't snore.
We don't snore.
You don't snore.
They don't snore.

Do I stink?
Do you stink?
Does he stink?
Does she stink?
Does it stink?
Do we stink?
Do you stink?
Do they stink?

PLURALS

When a countable noun refers to two or more things, use the plural form of the noun.

Plurals are generally created by ADDING S to the noun.

computer - computers

phantom - phantoms

umbrella - umbrellas

house - houses

book - books

hat - hats

With some nouns it is a little different.
These are the most COMMON EXCEPTIONS.

FOR NOUNS ENDING IN:

O, S, X, ZZ, CH, SH, add ES:

potato - potatoes

kiss - kisses

box - boxes

buzz - buzzes

witch - witches

dish - dishes

For a noun ending in Z, add ZES.

quiz - quizzes

And for some nouns ending in O, add S.

photo - photos

piano - pianos

CONSONANT + Y, change Y to IES.

city - cities

MOST NOUNS ENDING IN F OR FE, change to VES.

wolf - wolves

MOST NOUNS ENDING IN IS, change to ES.

crisis - crises

WOMAN

IRREGULAR PLURALS

IRREGULAR NOUNS

don't follow the previous rules.

These are the most common.

MAN

CHILDREN

CHILD

COUNTABLE AND UNCOUNTABLE NOUNS

A COUNTABLE NOUN

can have a number in front of it and can be plural:

3 years, 2 suitcases, 1 rabbit

An UNCOUNTABLE NOUN

cannot have a number in front of it and there is no plural form:

air, water, oil, hope

ARTICLES WITH COUNTABLE
AND UNCOUNTABLE
NOUNS

A | AN, THE

Use a COUNTABLE NOUN:

with A | AN

the first time you use that noun.

There is a naked man in the garden.

A- when the noun starts with a consonant: a friend

AN- when the noun starts with a vowel: an egg

with THE

the subsequent times you use the noun, or when the listener already knows what you are referring to.

The naked man is dancing.

Use a PLURAL COUNTABLE NOUN:

with NO ARTICLE

when you speak in general.

I don't like children.

Use an UNCOUNTABLE NOUN:

with NO ARTICLE

if you mean all or any of that thing.

I don't need help.

with THE

when you are talking about a particular example.

Thanks for the help you didn't give me before.

HOW MUCH | HOW MANY

Use "how much?"
to ask about something that is
UNCOUNTABLE.

Use "how many?"
to ask about something that is COUNTABLE.

Some & Any

SOME and ANY

are used when the speaker doesn't specify a number or an exact amount.

SOME is used in POSITIVE SENTENCES

with uncountable nouns:

You have some butter on your nose.

with plural countable nouns:

You have some boogers in your nose.

ANY is used in NEGATIVE SENTENCES and QUESTIONS

with uncountable nouns:

I don't want any risk in my life.

with plural countable nouns:

Do you have any friends?

Two common exceptions to these rules:

Use SOME in questions when offering | requesting:

Would you like some more tea, darling?

Use ANY in positive sentences when it means "it doesn't matter which":

You can call me at any time.

What's that noise?
Is that a rat?
Are there any rats?

Yes... There are some rats
Well, a lot of rats!

Are they close?

Yes, very close!
And they are big! Some of them look hungry... with big teeth.

forming the simple past tense

With regular verbs,
the Simple Past is created simply by adding ED,
but with some verbs it is a little different.

FOR VERBS ENDING IN:

E, add D:

live - lived

CONSONANT + Y, change Y to I and add ED:

cry - cried

ONE VOWEL + ONE CONSONANT (but not W | Y),

double the consonant and add ED:

commit - committed

ANYTHING ELSE, add ED:

jump - jumped

VERB + ED

The tale of the young foreign girl

Once upon a time, a young foreign girl was looking for a room in New York City. Nobody wanted her in their apartment. Her problem was that she didn't speak English!

When the young foreign girl was desperate, after days and weeks of visiting rooms all over the city and talking with potential roommates, she found her chance. One rainy morning she met with a man who was looking for a roommate. It seemed he didn't care about her poor English.

They met in the busiest downtown coffee shop. He was quite a lot older than she was. He was wearing all black with black-rimmed glasses over a big nose. He looked like an ordinary guy. They both ordered a cup of tea and sat at a small table.

He was very interested in the young girl's life. He didn't stop asking questions. She tried to explain, with her limited knowledge of the language and some gestures, why she was in the city and what she did for a living.

Satisfied with her answers, he started to talk about the apartment. It sounded great! Nice place, nice price and friendly roommate. She was grateful for her good luck. Her troubles were over, she thought.

Then the guy showed her some crumpled pictures of a big bright room, a spacious, charming living room, and a clean, tidy kitchen. Meanwhile, he was getting closer to her and he said:

"But there are some conditions. First, you can't have friends over for the first two weeks. Second, you have to be nice to me."

"Well, I'm nice," the young foreigner said. "Why the first condition?"

"Because we will get to know each other faster and it will be easier for us to become friends, close friends," the guy said, smiling. "And there is one more condition. If you are a bad girl, I will beat your young little ass."

So the young foreign girl ran away. Even with her limited English, she understood. She is still looking for a room in New York City, visiting apartments and talking with potential roommates . . . for who knows how long.

GET USED TO

FOR SOMETHING THAT IS BECOMING FAMILIAR TO YOU OR TO WHICH YOU ARE ADAPTING.

subject + GET USED TO + gerund or noun

Melissa and Meritxell haven't gotten used to living without addictions.

WISHES

WISH is commonly used to express regret or in reference to unreal situations.
Wishes for the PRESENT and FUTURE:

Use PAST SIMPLE to express when you would like a situation to be different.

He wishes she were here.

Use PAST CONTINUOUS
to express when you would like to be doing something different.

He wishes they were lying on the bed.

You can use "were" for I | he | she | it.

Wishes for the PAST:

Use PAST PERFECT

to express regret or when you would like a situation to be different.

He wishes she hadn't come over.

You can use SUBJECT + WISH + PRONOUN in fixed expressions: I wish you the best.

To COMPLAIN
or express IMPATIENCE:

Use WOULD + VERB

He wishes she would stop laughing.

or COULD + VERB

He wishes he could make her disappear.

RATHER

at The Museum of Modern Art

RATHER

is used to express PREFERENCE.

RATHER THAN

means “instead of” or “and not.”

means "would prefer."

Used to show preference for one option over another.

SUBJECT + WOULD RATHER + INFINITIVE without "to"
+ OPTION

- Hey JEFF! LET'S GET OUT OF HERE!

- I 'D RATHER STAY HERE.

OR RATHER

Used to change what it is just said.

SHE IS DISTRACTED, OR RATHER, SHE IS PRETENDING TO BE DISTRACTED.

RATHER

is also an adverb of degree.

It means "quite."

MARILYN HAD A RATHER TENDER LOOK.

Connectors

Connectors, also called linking words or linkers, indicate the relationship between ideas.

The last clue drove Harry to the wood house on top of the mountain. Maybe this would be the telltale clue. The weather was very bad and, in addition, the car lights didn't work because they had been shot out a couple of hours earlier. Despite all this, Harry managed to get to the place and get out of the car unnoticed. The lights of the house were on, so Harry carefully crawled through the bushes until he reached the window. There he saw Elisabeth crying. Suddenly, a shiver came over his body. Instead of crying, Elisabeth was actually laughing and looking directly into Harry's eyes while holding the gun.

Types of connectors by meaning:

GIVING EXAMPLES

for example (e.g.), for instance, such as

INTRODUCING A TOPIC

with regard to, regarding, concerning, by the way

ADDING INFORMATION and, also, too, as well as, in addition, apart from, besides, furthermore, moreover, then again

SUMMARIZING

in short, in brief, in summary, to conclude, in conclusion

GIVING A REASON

because, because of, for, since, as, due to, owing to

INTRODUCING DEVELOPMENTS

so, consequently, as a result, therefore, thus, hence

REFLECTING CONTRAST

but, however, although, even though, though, despite, in spite of, nevertheless, nonetheless, while, whereas, unlike, on the other hand, anyway

SEQUENCING IDEAS

firstly, secondly, thirdly, to begin with, next, lastly, finally

DURING THE NARRATIVE

at the beginning, then, at last, once, afterward, suddenly, finally, in the end

EMPHASIZING

obviously, particularly, in theory, in fact, especially

SHOWING CERTAINTY

surely, indeed, undoubtedly, certainly, even so

Relative Clauses

A relative clause is a dependent clause that modifies a word, phrase or idea in the main clause.

It begins with a RELATIVE PRONOUN:

WHO, WHOM, WHOSE, THAT or WHICH

(in certain situations, WHAT, WHEN and WHERE can function as relative pronouns)

The type of clause determines which relative pronoun to use.

There are two types of relative clauses:

NON-DEFINING CLAUSES and DEFINING CLAUSES.

Defining Clauses

The information contained in defining clauses is ESSENTIAL. When deleted, it's not clear who or what is being talked about.

In this type of clause the relative pronouns used are:
For people: WHO, THAT
(and WHOM followed by a preposition)
For things: WHICH, THAT

This type of clause is NOT separated by a COMMA.

The woman who is pushing a stroller is her heroine.

That woman who is pushing a stroller while jogging is my heroine.

What about me?

Non-Defining Clauses

In non-defining clauses the information is NOT ESSENTIAL. When deleted, it's still clear who or what is being talked about.

In this type of clause the relative pronouns used are:
For people: WHO
(and WHOM, WHOSE)
For things: WHICH (and WHOSE)

This type of clause is separated by a COMMA from the main clause.

Exercise, which is supposed to be good for your health, is killing her.

ACTIVE & PASSIVE VOICES

There are two voices in English: the active and the passive.

The ACTIVE VOICE

describes what the subject does.

The dog bit Julianne's leg.

The PASSIVE VOICE

describes what is done to the subject.

It's usually used when we don't know or are not interested in who performs the action.

Julianne's leg was bitten by some dog.

The passive voice is formed with:

TO BE + PAST PARTICIPLE

is made . . .

It can also be formed by:

TO GET + PAST PARTICIPLE

got broken . . .

All the verb tenses can be expressed in passive voice.

The concert will be performed next week.

The concert has been performed already.

BY is used to show the person or thing doing the action.

The painting was made by a monkey.

I WOULD LIKE HIM TO BE EATEN TOO.

THE PIGEONS ARE EATING A WORM.

WORMS ARE EATEN EVERY DAY
ALL OVER THE WORLD.

Reported Speech

There are two ways to repeat what another person said:

DIRECT SPEECH and REPORTED SPEECH.

DIRECT SPEECH

uses exact words in quotation marks.

She said, "I need a friend."

REPORTED SPEECH

is indirect.

She said she needed a friend.

Reported speech uses the past form of direct speech.

"I need a friend." - She said she needed a friend.

"I'm feeling alone." - She said she was feeling alone.

"I've spent all Sunday watching TV." - She said she had spent all Sunday watching TV.

"I will go to bed early." - She said she would go to bed early.

When direct speech uses a past form, reported speech doesn't change.

"I was afraid." - She said she was afraid.

"I was looking for a better life." - She said she was looking for a better life.

Modals & Similar Expressions

Modal verbs and similar expressions:

CAN, COULD, BE ABLE TO,
SHOULD, OUGHT TO, HAD BETTER, HAVE TO, HAVE GOT TO, MUST,
MAY, MIGHT, WOULD, WILL.

They are auxiliary verbs used to express

ABILITY, ADVICE, NECESSITY, PROHIBITION, ASSUMPTION, FUTURE POSSIBILITY, PERMISSION, REQUEST and SUGGESTION.

Modals in the present are always followed by the base form of the verb (infinitive without “to”).

They have only one form, so they don't add S in the third person singular.

She must be lost.

BE ABLE TO, HAVE TO or HAVE GOT TO
are not modals, so the conjugated form must be used!

She has to be lost.

I can sing,...

...play
the guitar

...and ride a unicycle.

to express ABILITY

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

CAN, COULD and BE ABLE TO

are used to express ability.

CAN'T, COULDN'T and NOT BE ABLE TO

are used to express inability.

Use CAN

for the present.

I can sing, play the guitar and ride a unicycle at the same time.

I can't teach you. I don't know how I do it.

Use COULD

for the past.

I could laugh at my classmates without regrets when I was child.

I couldn't understand English before I read this book.

Use BE ABLE TO

for all verb tenses.

“Be able to” in the present or past is more formal than “can” or “could.”

With “be able to,” use the correct form for each verb tense.

I'm able to follow your orders, boss.

She wasn't able to come with me.

Will you be able to go to Berlin next summer?

I like being able to do what I like.

SHOULD, OUGHT TO and HAD BETTER or SHOULDN'T, OUGHT NOT and HAD BETTER NOT are used to give advice.

SHOULD and OUGHT TO mean the same thing, but should is more common.
They are used in the present and future tenses.

You should leave him.
We shouldn't forget they are humans.
You ought to just be yourself.

The negative form of ought to is OUGHT NOT (without “to”).
She ought not watch this movie. She'll be afraid tonight.

SHOULD
is used to ask for advice.
Should I quit my job?

HAD BETTER
is used for recommendations:
You'd better stop smoking.
desperate hope or implied threat:
He'd better not be having an affair.
to warn people:
You'd better not run so much; this road is dangerous!

to give ADVICE

They are composed of:

AUXILIARY VERB + SUBJECT of the sentence.

For a positive sentence, use a negative tag.

She dances very well, doesn't she?

You're tired, aren't you?

For a negative sentence, use a positive tag.

You don't like me, do you?

Imperative question tags usually use "will."

Shut up, will you?

Honey...

What?

You're tired, aren't you?

Well...

You don't like me, do you?

Maybe I shouldn't have brought you to the dance, huh?

Darling...

Baby, you'll be able to forgive me, won't you?

Shut up, will you? That buzzing around you is just a fly, isn't it?

CONDITIONALS

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

Conditionals describe situations and circumstances that entail cause and effect.
If a particular condition is present, a particular result occurs.

Conditionals are composed of two clauses:
the IF CLAUSE and the RESULT CLAUSE.

You can begin conditional sentences with the if clause or the result clause.

The meaning is the same.

Note that if the if clause comes first,
a COMMA is used between the two clauses.

ZERO CONDITIONAL

IF + SIMPLE PRESENT SIMPLE PRESENT . . .

If you heat water to 100 degrees Celsius, it boils.

IF YOU HEAT WATER TO 100 DEGREES
CELSIUS, IT BOILS.

1

For GENERAL TRUTHS.

You can often use “when” instead of “if.”

When you heat water to 100 degrees Celsius, it boils.

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

2

For HABITS
and things that always happen.

You can use simple present or present continuous in the if clause.

IF + PRESENT CONTINUOUS . . .

. . . SIMPLE PRESENT . . .

If Susan is feeling happy, she dances.

3

To give INSTRUCTIONS or INVITATIONS
dependent on certain conditions,
use the imperative with the if clause.

IF . . . PRESENT SIMPLE . . .

. . . IMPERATIVE . . .

If you are free, come over for dinner.

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

FIRST CONDITIONAL

IF + SIMPLE PRESENT FUTURE SIMPLE . .

If you love me, you will stay with me.

First conditional is used to talk about FUTURE POSSIBILITIES.

Instead of simple present, you can also use other present tenses:

PRESENT CONTINUOUS: If you are feeling bored, I'll sing you a song.

PRESENT PERFECT SIMPLE: If you have already eaten chicken today, I'll give you chicken tomorrow.

PRESENT PERFECT CONTINUOUS: If you have been watching TV, I'll throw it away.

小红书号: 6798970257

IF SHE GETS DISTRACTED,
I CAN ESCAPE.

UNLESS HE SUDDENLY LEAVES, I WILL BE ABLE TO ESCAPE UNNOTICED.

WILL is a modal verb. Other MODAL VERBS express different meanings.

If she gets distracted, I can escape | I could escape | I might be able to escape.

IF can be replaced with:

WHETHER: Whether he suddenly leaves or not, I'll be able to escape unnoticed.

(= if he leaves and if he doesn't)

UNLESS: Unless he suddenly leaves, I'll be able to escape unnoticed. (= if he doesn't leave)

CONDITIONALS | 289

SECOND CONDITIONAL

IF + SIMPLE PAST . . . , . . . WOULD + VERB (infinitive without "to") . . .

If men liked her, she would be happy.

Second conditional is used to talk about HYPOTHETICAL SITUATIONS.

IF MEN LIKED ME,
I WOULD BE HAPPY.

A cartoon illustration of a woman with long, straight black hair. She is wearing a red bow in her hair, a red bracelet on her left wrist, and red polka-dot tights with black high-heeled shoes. She is looking back over her right shoulder with her left hand raised in a questioning or pleading gesture. A speech bubble from her head contains the text 'IF MEN LIKED ME, I WOULD BE HAPPY.'

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

Hypothetical situations are:

IMAGINARY

If I were married, I would make my husband the happiest man in the world.

IMPOSSIBLE

If I were a man, I would like hairy women.

IMPROBABLE

If I had a lover, I would tickle him with my hair.

In addition to the simple past, you can use:

PAST CONTINUOUS: If you were looking for a lover, I might be available.

In addition to “would,” you can use:

COULD: If I were wealthy, I could buy everything I need.

MIGHT: If I shaved off my beard, I might be able to get married.

THIRD CONDITIONAL

IF + PAST PERFECT WOULD HAVE + PAST PARTICIPLE ...

If I had lived longer, I would have loved much more.

Third conditional is used to talk about PAST HYPOTHETICAL SITUATIONS, things that didn't happen in the past.

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

In addition to “would have,” you can use:

SHOULD HAVE: If he had hurt your feelings, he should have apologized.

COULD HAVE: If I had realized it sooner, I could have gotten together with the woman who brings me flowers.

MIGHT HAVE: If I had been luckier, I might have succeeded in life.

If or Whether?

I WONDER WHETHER I SHOULD HAVE ADDED A LITTLE MORE POISON TO HIS TEA.

小红书

小红书号: 6798970257

"If" and "whether" are similar, but there are some differences.

Use IF:

To express a condition.

In conditional sentences, "if" introduces the condition.

If something annoys you, look for a solution.

Use WHETHER:

To present two alternatives.

I wonder whether I should have added a little more poison to his tea.

(= Should I have added more poison or not?)

After prepositions.

We argued about whether I behaved rudely toward him.

Before infinitives.

I've been thinking about whether to get rid of everything that annoys me.

Use WHETHER or IF:

Reporting yes | no questions.

She wondered whether | if he was right.

The question is: Was he right?

In WHETHER | IF . . . OR . . . constructions.

I would like to know whether | if the problem is me or him.

A CHEEKY, SOPHISTICATED AND STRAIGHTFORWARD GUIDE TO THE PECULIARITIES AND PUZZLES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

SMP

GES

When prominent Barcelona-based illustrator Luci Gutiérrez found herself tuning out in English class, she used her love of drawing to help retain what she'd learned. She soon found that learning English may not be simple but it can be fun.

Ditching the kind of bland and useless phrases that fill most English textbooks, Gutiérrez uses whimsical characters and cheeky dialogue to bring vocabulary, grammar, and usage topics to life. Need an insult? Those are here, too, and "imbecile" is the kindest in the bunch.

Nearly forty-seven million people in the United States speak a language other than English at home, and even most native speakers struggle with subtle distinctions, such as when to use "whether" as opposed to "if." (For example: "I wonder whether I should have added a little more poison to his tea.") For those who haven't brushed up on grammar since high school or nonnative English speakers looking to improve conversation, English Is Not Easy is a fresh and infectious guide to revisiting the rules with remarkable illustrative adventure along the way.

LUCI GUTIÉRREZ studied illustration at Barcelona's renowned art institute, Escola Massana, and moved into book illustration after a few years of working in advertising and media. In the United States her illustrations have appeared in The New Yorker, The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Wall Street Journal, and Time magazine. Luci lives in Barcelona.
